Jennifer is the Founder and Executive Director of Young Catholic Professionals (YCP), a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization with a mission to 'Work in Witness for Christ'. She received her Bachelor's of Science in Marketing from Trinity University and her MBA from Texas A&M University. Jennifer worked for Merrill Lynch in the Global Wealth Management practice and for FTI Consulting in the Corporate Restructuring practice before starting the YCP ministry in 2010. Jennifer is now a mom of three rambunctious little boys and is embracing the challenge of running a thriving apostolate while saving enough energy for toddler adventures.

THE CALL

Faced with an 8-month waiting period before beginning a new position with a financial consulting firm, Jennifer Baugh experienced a season of soul-searching marked by both stillness and a longing for something more. She desired guidance on balancing work and faith, and deeper friendships in a world often characterized by surface-level interactions, distractions, and busyness. Through this journey of faith Jennifer sensed a growing conviction that God was calling her to start something new.

14 years later YCP has become the nation's largest and fastest growing young professional Catholic network, enabling tens of thousands of young people in their 20s & 30s to have more confidence in their Faith and in their ability to live it in the workplace and in all areas of their lives.

INSPIRATION FOR YCP

"No one ... can ignore the genuine difficulties which the Church encounters at the present moment. Yet in faith we can take heart from ... the promise offered by whose experience and convictions will have a decisive role in renewing the Church's presence and witness in American society."

A NEW GENERATION OF CATHOLICS

*Pope Emeritus Benedict's
Address to U.S. Bishops,
2012*
